Summer Winds.

MARY E. BRADLEY, IN "APPLETON'S JOURNAL" FOR JULY Sweet are the summer days that come with tender shining, Sweet are the wandering winds that visit me repining ; The bloom, the song, the grace of all the year they capture, And fill this desert place with unimagined rapture.

Prisoner of hopeless pain, in lengthening chains I languish; Day still renews the strain of night's unuttered anguish ; I fle beneath His rod, His bolts and bars surround me, Yet the sweet winds of God with healing touch have found me O welcome wind that comes His gracious law fulfilling.

In you the brown bee hums, the sky-lark's song is thrilling Voices of wood and field your whispering voice discloses, And in your breath revealed I find the summer's roses. They have not lent their bloom to comfort me more nearly,

And in my ellent room no bird has caroled cheerly, Yet while your light caress, O wind of heaven, woos me, Nor rose nor singing-bird its sweetness doth refuse me. Blow through my fevered brain, soft breath, and cool its burning ; Speak, soothing voice, again, and hush the wild heart's yearn-Though in the floods I stand, and deep waves overflow me,

Show me my Father's hand, His loving-kindness show me. Truly I will not doubt that love shall yet avail me, My fear I will cast out, nor let despair assail me : Blow, summer winds, away the black cloud of repining -My heart lies still to-day, to feel the tender shining.

A Chinaman never swears when he gets mad because there are no " cuss words" in his dictionary. He simply upsets his wash-tub, butts the bottom out, kicks a dog, and feels better.

It has been remarked by an eminent physician of this country that no more suitable epitaph could be inscribed upon the headstone of the average be inscribed upon the headstone of the average deceased citizen of the United States than the brief legend: "Died of a frying-pan!" Here is a good verse in a poem elicited by the discussion of the question of future rewards and punishments:

It is easy enough for the lovers of sin to Believe in no heaven they cannot get into, And natural too, for the wicked, to doubt of A hell which they fear they cannot keep out of.

The Scotch farmer waxed indignant at his new barometer when it would rise, although it continued raining, and, taking it to the door, he held it towards the sky, and exclaimed: "In the name o' goodness, wall ye na believe your ain

Dr. Ayer, of "Cherry Pectoral" fame, died worth from fifteen million to twenty million dollars. He might have had not a tithe of these millions to bother his head about if he had sense enough not to have advertised. Business men should take warning. The surest way to avoid the accumulation of wealth and all the annovances which it entails is to avoid adver-

The Detriot Free Press says: Yesterday morning a man whose every look proved how hungry and penniless he was, halted before an eating stand at the Central Market to let his mouth water for while. The woman knew his worth and called out:

"Come, be jogging along! You won't get any food here unless you have the cash." "My dear woman," he confidently began as he drew nearer, " I am not hungry; I just left the heartiest meal I ever ate. I was not looking at your beautiful meats, your lovely cakes, or your rich and juicy pies, but at your-" What were you looking at me for ?" "I was wondering," he said, "if you were any relation to Lady Clare, of England. You have the same brown eyes, same beautiful hair-same sweet accent." "I never knew her," replied the woman, as her face began to clear up. "Didn't, eh? Well I never saw two faces nearer alike in their sweet expression. I wish I had your portrait painted on ivory-I really She handed him half a pie and a piece of meat, and, as he sauntered off, she began hunting around for a piece of broken mirror. A lady, having heard that her son had gained in school, as a prize, a year's subscription to a popular youth's magazine, wrote an anxious letter to the publishers. She had never allowed her boy to read one sentence that was not absolutely true; it was the object of her life to keep him from fiction and falsity, and she wanted to know if the magazine was free from these objectionable features. - The answer was this:

"Dear Madam :- It your notion is carried out strictly, there is but one publication we can recommend, and, on second thought, we doubt even as to that. We were going to suggest the New Testament, until we happened to recollect that our Saviour therein is mentioned as speaking in parables.

Turkish beggars-sufferers of the present war in the East-have put in an appearance. One of those mendicants presented himself at the door of an up-town residence a few mornings since, with his hat extended in a supplicatory manner, and muttering "Allah Bishmallah goloshes rustachuk," or something that way, when a cross dog came up in his rear and seized a mouthful of his baggy breeches, he exclaimed, off the head o' ye!" He knew the dog wouldn't GROCERY AND FEED STORE, understand the Turkish language .- [Norristown Herald.

It has been ascertained that a book agent can be won by kindness. One day last week a West Hill man tried it on one of them. He beat him with a bludgeon and broke his arm, poured kerosene over his clothes, and set fire to it, shot him through the lungs and finally locked him up in a room with a mad dog, and the agent, deeply affected, whispered through the key-hole that as soon as the dog got through with him, he'd let him have a copy of " Moody's Anecdotes" for sixty-five cents, which was thirty per cent. off .-Burlington Hawkeye.

CONSPICUOUSLY EXACT TESTIMONY .- In a trial at Winchester, a witness, failing to make his version of a conversation intelligible by reason of his fondness for "says I" and "says he," was taken in hand by Baron Martin, with the following result: "My man, tell us now exactly what passed." "Yes, my lord, I said I would not have the pig." "And what was his answer?" "He said he had been keeping it for me, and that he"--" No, no; he could not have said that; he spoke in the first person.' " No, my lord; I was the first person that spoke." "I mean, don't bring in the third person; repeat his exact words." "There was no third person, my lord; only him and me." "My good fellow, he did not say he had been keeping the pig; he said, 'I have been keeping it.'" "I assure you, my lord, there was no mention of your lordship at all. We are on different stories. There was no third person there, and if anything had been said about your lordship I must have heard it." The Baron gave in.—London Times.
